

The Machett Debate.

(Essay replied to, by request.)

I see in the columns of your worthy paper an interesting argument in defense of General Machett's career. As a lover of righted wrongs, I feel inclined to open the eyes of the reading public to the falsity of this argument and prevent a vile impostor becoming a subject of pious remembrance.

Having attended court in our little city during the past month, I was an interested listener to a murder trial which forcibly reminds me of the Machett debate.

The young lady who so ably acquitted herself on the five days of the debate before the Hickman Literary Club will allow me to assign her the position of Deputy Speaker, while I come forward as prosecuting attorney.

My prisoner, when he stands at the verdict—guilty, he is guilty of murder, or of murder, as you will sentence him to the penitentiary, though I say, "build a gallows forty feet high."

Lady Machett, as only an accomplice, must necessarily occupy a secondary position; though with all due deference for her ladyship's superior abilities; and for her polite Defender of our "own sex."

Wharton defines murder thus: "Murder is the unlawful killing of a human and discretion unlawfully kills any reasonably creature or being, with malice prepense, or forethought, either expressed or implied." I aver the prisoner was a man of sound mind, and as such regarded by his fellow-men as a creature of discretion, as such trusted with the chief position in the king's army.

Our history of this man begins with his contemplating murder, say, this very murder. We know nothing of his early life, and, as Miss Guber would say, "it is enough for me to determine that he was gentle, kind and peaceable." So gentle, kind, and peaceable, that he was the chief general of Scotland's soldiery.

Lady Machett, as wives are wont, said a little praise and a little rebuke, as it is usual and may be useful. But Miss G. will call to mind the occasion upon which Lady Machett pronounced her husband "insane from youth up," she will remember it was to avert suspicion from her husband when he gave way to stings of guilty conscience before the assembled gaze. She, on other occasions, spoke of his tender heart, constant love, blending with pride and ambition to make him "a man of noble strength"—she, "his dearest partner in greatness."

Was Machett a monomaniac upon the subject of murder? History says Machett was "filled with the milky of human kindness previous to the murder of Duncan." Was the murder of Duncan, this particular man, his mania? If so, would he have reasoned about it as he did? Let us follow his conduct previous to the act. Return from the field of battle with body worn with fighting, and mind filled with ambition for greater things after his victory, he calls to his proud brain visions of regal honors. His heart alone proclaims, not until I am king shall I be content. From that time on, Machett will rise to the throne of Glamis, he will rise to the throne of Cawdor, and "king hereafter." Wishes are said to have appeared to him and addressed him by these titles. Not alone did Machett behold these apparitions; another general, Banquo, viewed them in his company. Nor did the tremble and quiver in flesh or spirit at sight of supernatural beings. Why should they? They were strong, reasonable men; both heard what they most desired.

Could these wishes be visions of Machett's disordered brain? Banquo also insane, and he the same nature to hear and see a hundred senses? Before going on in the investigation of Machett's derangement of mind, let me introduce by the author's own words his plays to please his age, surrounding his characters with striking pictures to excite deep interest in both reader and beholder; and by their means he gives us an insight into the ruling passions of his creatures. Such are the wishes—pictures for the stage; their utterances—the workings of two evil, ambitious minds.

Now, here my opponent has overstepped a space in time and quotes, "sleep no more, Machett doth murder sleep," as being previous to the murder of Duncan, and regarded as visions urging him on not to sleep, but to wake and commit the deed; whereas this was the cry of conscience after his hands were stained with the innocent blood of Duncan.

I tell you again from the defensive argument. Once more and let us own our rest, quiet and at rest, his reason resumes its deserted throne and again yields its way; he, in this softened mood, gives three reasons why he ought not to kill Duncan. First, Duncan is his kinsman; second, he is his guest; third, Duncan bears his honors so meekly.

Very sound logic for a monomaniac, and upon his touchy subject. He argues with his wife coolly and collected, at any time, upon this subject; and he does give way before others of his kind of conscience.

Certainly, you grant Lady Machett to be an intelligent, reasonable person.

The Underwood Vendetta.

(Mayville Eagle.)

It is known that during the war the Underwood family had pretty much their own way in the neighborhood of Olive Hill, in Carter county. But after its conclusion the climate ceased to be healthy for Alfred Underwood, the leader of the party, and he followed Greeley's advice to go West. It has been several times reported that he was dead, had been killed, but it is pretty certain that he is alive, and still a dangerous shot with a rifle. Not long after the war Jesse Underwood became involved in a squabble in a bar room in Bath county, while a circus was going on, which terminated in his killing young Trumbo. He has always said that he shot at another man, and had the slightest suspicion of shooting Trambo, to whom he bore no ill will. He escaped, and for some time hid his face from the authorities in Carter county. He has been reported to be in the neighborhood of the war between the States.

Speed the Parting Wards.
The exodus of the colored people from the Southern to the Northern and Western States, at first, was received with opposition by the white people in the South, principally because they saw that it was being engineered for political reasons, but the second view of the movement is causing many of the leading papers and citizens to favor the movement. This is especially true of Kentucky, Tennessee, and the border Southern States. We begin to realize that the exodus of the black man is really but an exchange of black for white labor, and thousands of white men are ready and anxious to come and take the place of the colored exodus on southern farms and plantations. The prejudice of white labor against the black, or rather against being brought in competition and equality with them, pertains more peculiarly to the Northern raised workman than to the Southern, and this very prejudice has kept thousands and thousands of white laboring men and women from coming into Kentucky and other Southern States. In addition to this seeming increased white population which we will get in exchange, all this race conflict and strife will end, and the political causes being removed, our labor system can become more stable and can be depended upon. The derangement of labor, now existing, does more than any other cause, to retard the prosperity of Kentucky. Capital which would be invested in land and agriculture is now deterred from the simple fact that the labor necessary to make farms profitable is so unreliable.

Here is the way the St. Louis Republican views the subject:
It sounds somewhat plausible that the negro exodus from the Southern States should have had its origin in a desire to deprive those States of their proper Congressional representation, as it will be fixed under the 1880 census. But the notion is absurd. How many of the five millions of negroes in the Southern States could be shipped North within a year seriously to affect that Congressional representation? The number would not be worth wasting a breath. For all parties concerned it will be much better that the American citizen of African descent distribute himself as much as possible over the whole blessed region of the United States; and, considering the matter economically, we should think that the further North he goes the more is the country at large benefited.
If our Southern friends need more labor let them look in the direction of Europe. Let them leave Africa mercifully alone. We surely have had enough of it.
The Frankfort Freeman, the capital Democratic organ of Kentucky, says:
As there is likely to be 5,000,000 immigrants to this country in the next year, and all from Europe, the South may have a chance to more than compensate. But her losses by reason of the negro exodus. All the Southern States have to do is to establish immigration bureaus, and invite the world to come in and settle upon their inexhaustible lands. As long as this accursed emity exists between the North and the South on account of the negro, it will keep the country in trouble, and it will be better for the South if the last one of her negroes can be sent across the line. Let her give up her negro labor, even if she has to give up her sugar and cotton, and wait the coming of a time when her hands will be peopled by a race about which there can be no contention.
It has been calculated by parties in a position to know, that during the coming year the population of the country will be increased by 5,000,000 European emigrants, and the South should be active to obtain her share of them. During the month of August, the number of immigrants was 22,000, and August is the poorest month of the year for that purpose.

The "National Democratic Committee" was in session in Washington Thursday. They considered the Ohio canvass.
The next State election will be in Ohio—October 13. Next will come Mississippi—November 3rd. New York, Virginia, New Jersey and Wisconsin will elect on the 15th of November.
The fifth anniversary of the overthrow of the Kellogg government was observed in New Orleans on the 14th. Military companies paraded through the streets, and a requiem mass for the members of the militia killed on the occasion was celebrated at the Cathedral.

The prospects of the crop return of Great Britain are alarming, and indicate a season of great scarcity and much suffering during the coming winter. It is estimated by the best authorities on the subject that the outcome of all the grain crops this season will fall a third below the ordinary average.

THE CENSUS.
How the Chief of the National Census Bureau Proposes to Take the Enumeration.
A Post Reporter dropped into the old Republican building yesterday and had a pleasant chat with Gen. Francis K. Walker, Chief of the National Census Bureau, in reference to the progress and prospective arrangements for this important work by the department of which he is the head.

"What arrangements have you made for the census, general?" queried the Post representative.
"The census of the coming year," replied the general, "will be taken different from the one preceding, owing to the fact that it is a special act, and we expect through this means to deal with subjects of which it has been found impossible to obtain accurate or even approximate statistics through the usual system of going from house to house."

"The census day is June 1, 1880, when the population all over the country will be counted. The enumerators, as they are technically called, will begin on that day and proceed until the counting is finished. Persons who were alive June 1, and died before the collector's visit, will be put in the census. Births subsequent to the 1st of June will not be taken. The object is to get the correct statistics up to June 1, which is the last of the census year."

"How will agricultural statistics be secured?"
"It would not pay to employ special agents to take agricultural figures, and this duty will be trusted to the enumerators. This is a wide field. There are probably three million farmers in this country, and you will see the objection to employing special assistance when the ground can be covered as well by the regular force."

"Does this apply to all granger interests?"
"No, there are certain branches, such as fruit culture, live stock, and important crops, where special agents must necessarily be employed, and the work will be done as never before. The special officers will collect facts and figures relating to the growth of those crops, and fruit, meat and transportation, and the shipping of live stock to England. Lumber, honey, beeswax, and other industries that are becoming of great importance, will also receive the special attention of an agent, and the product of these efforts will form a valuable adjunct to the census, and show a vast difference to those of former years."

"How will the census be taken?"
"It comes under the branch of 'social statistics,' which embraces education, churches, schools, libraries, newspapers, wages, wealth, debt and taxation. It will be collected almost entirely through special agents, as well as special statistics, pauperism, criminality, idleness and deaf muteness."

"How have they been collected before?"
"By enumerators, or else by deputies of the United States marshals in the several districts."

"What force will be necessary, and when will it be selected?"
"There will be one hundred and fifty supervisors, one or more to each State, according to its size. The supervisors' districts will be formed and announced about the middle of October, and the appointments will probably be made at the meeting of Congress in December. In January the supervisors will appoint the enumerators. The special agents will be selected as necessary."

"How many enumerators will be required?"
"I suppose about fifteen or twenty thousand, and those in the country will be required to complete their labors during the month of June, 1880. Those in cities are confined to the first two weeks of the same month. The reports will come in as rapidly as possible."

It will require the solid South with her 138 electoral votes with those of New York, (35) and Indiana, (15) to give the Democratic ticket for President in 1880 a majority of three in the electoral college. The votes of Ohio, 22, and Indiana, 15, without New York will not do. New York must be carried or all is lost.

To Absent Memphians.
A large number of absent Memphians are on the anxious seat. They desire to come home even now. They read the small death list in the newspapers and think it is no very great epidemic, and they would prefer to run a little risk than to longer stay away. The State Board will not, however, allow the return of absentees until there is absolute certainty of entire immunity from the fever. The absence of any considerable number of unaccompanied persons to our population, who have never had the fever, will have a tendency to cause a fresh outbreak of the disease even in cool October. It will be like adding fire to an existing flame. Therefore, be a perfect case of yellow fever in the city or the prospect of one. Let the absentees possess their souls in patience, congratulate themselves that they are on the safe side of the quarantine line, and wisely wait there until the State Board authorizes their return."

Marrying Chinamen.
The absence of Chinese women in the East has compelled the males to intermarry with the whites. There are in New York at the present time nearly three hundred Chinamen who have white wives. They are mainly Spanish and Irish women, the Mongolians preferring the latter on account of their skill in domestic labor. Few of them allow their wives to work. This is due to a spirit of gallantry which is visible even in the West. This intermarriage of races commenced about six years ago. Consequently a young China Celtic generation is springing up, the oldest of whom is about fifty years of age. As these children are becoming very numerous, they may become an important factor in strengthening the kindly relations between our citizens and Chinese emigrants. In a year or two some of them will be old enough to enter school.

The Yellow Fever.
The yellow fever at Memphis, the past week, has exhibited a marked abatement, but yet lingers with dangerous tenacity. The new cases have run from 1 to 15 daily, and the death rate from 1 to 6. The whole country feels that the end of the present epidemic is only a question of a few weeks longer.

At Concordia, a place 150 miles below Memphis, the fever prevailed, though not to the alarming degree reported last week. They had 26 cases in all, most of which proved fatal, but the last week, only a few cases have occurred, and of not so severe type.

At Bailey Station only one family have been affected, and two of them are now sick.

There is no fever at New Orleans. The towns, cities, and States, are generally removing the quarantine. Memphis, however, is yet closely quarantined.

PRESIDENT Hayes, Gen. Sherman, and some of the Cabinet continue their tour through the western States. They are becoming so common that the people don't demonstrate much.

THE Ohio and New York elections are the great objects of interests in political circles to day. If the Democracy can fix either of these great States certain for 1880, it's all right.

THE ovation given Grant was the greatest ever accorded any American citizen. Now, we think of it, if they continue to heap these honors upon his head, we shall be tempted ourselves to conquer the first first-class rebellion that springs up in this country.

THE ex-Confederates in San Francisco participated in the demonstrations of welcome to Gen. Grant, and, while every nation on earth was represented by its colors, the flag of the Lost Cause, side by side with the flag of the Union, was not the least conspicuous.

On Public Speaking.
It may perhaps be of use to those anxious to become orators, to know that from some cause or other, almost all public speakers have been guilty of the thread of their argument, but lose all knowledge of what they are talking about. I have their temporary notes written in one of our English contentmentaries, with many of our most experienced orators. When it happens they repeat a few vague generalizations until their thoughts come back to them, and then they fall back again into speech. I have their temporary notes written in one of our English contentmentaries, with many of our most experienced orators. When it happens they repeat a few vague generalizations until their thoughts come back to them, and then they fall back again into speech.

QUITE a number of the admirers of the intelligence of Col Robert G. Gerson, in Paducah, are making an effort to induce him to visit that city and deliver a lecture. If the gifted lecturer is not well grounded in his belief of the non existence of a hell, a visit to Paducah will convince him that if there is not one, there ought to be.—(Trigg County Democrat.)

A strong feeling of animosity is growing up between Russia and Germany, and there are politicians and journalists on both sides who make no secret of their wish for a trial of strength between the two countries. Germany is certainly taking precautions that seem to provide for the worst. Ten thousand workmen are laboring on the fortifications of the fortress of Thorn, which is called the Strauburg of Germany's eastern border. The fortress of Posen has also been immensely strengthened and enlarged, and can now accommodate a large army. A considerable part of the indemnity payments made by France have been expended upon those fortifications and in furnishing them with enormous stores of provisions and ammunition.

Quarantine Salvation.
There is a considerable degree of excitement over the rule recently enforced by the State Board of Health, prohibiting the taking of loose cotton into the city of Memphis. Several parties in that city have proceeded to elect a special Judge, without any very great regard to legal methods, or rules of procedure, and this Judge is expected to grant and injunction restraining the Board from enforcing this rule. It seems to us that it is plainly the duty of the Board to insist upon carrying out its original design. Taking into consideration the fact that this is the Board's first experience in the management of a fever infected city, we regard its work at Memphis during the present season as highly satisfactory. There is no questioning the fact that the rigid but sensible system of quarantine enforced has served as an almost complete protection to the country outside of Memphis. The agents of the Board have almost completely isolated Memphis, and the fever has been confined to that one point. If no such system had been in force it is but fair to presume that the fever would have been carried to all the surrounding country, just as it was last year. If Memphis is open to all who may be infected, Memphis, and the State, will lose much more by loss from the fever when it seizes hold of their own neighborhoods and house-holds.

Attempted Rape.
[From Union City (Tenn.) Chronicle.]
On Thursday evening Buck Nail, colored, made an attempt to commit rape upon the person of Daisy Dean, the daughter of Mr. Thos. Dean, of this place. The cries of the child brought a railroad band who was working near to her rescue, and the negro ran away. The news spread quickly over the town, and a crowd of citizens turned out to hunt for him. The neighboring fields, and forests were searched in quest of him. Marshal W. J. Roberts went to Fulton, where he suspected that the negro had gone, and arrested him in the street. He was brought back to Union City and lodged in the calaboose. Yesterday evening he had a hearing before Judge W. J. Roberts, and was found guilty of the crime, and was bound over to the Circuit Court under a bond of $1,000, in default of which he was sent to Jail. Deputy Sheriff T. J. Latimer started about 5 o'clock yesterday evening, with him to Troy. There were some fears lest the negro would be murdered last night.

THE exodus appears to go on with out diminution. If Republican newspapers and politicians were really seeking the philosophy of this movement, they would be compelled to abandon the notion that short guns and bulldozing in Mississippi are the cause. It has a wider significance whatever it may be. The negroes, like the laboring white men of the North, are not prosperous and they are dissatisfied, but that is with them only a part of the cause of this movement.

Indians in New Mexico are committing depredations, and the call of the Governor for Federal troops has been granted.

The Independent party in Massachusetts has nominated Gen. Butler for governor. The Greenback party had already made him their candidate.

A cow that wore a bell having been run over and killed on a railroad, the owner brought suit against the railroad company for damages. It was proved that the engineer rang his bell and tried to frighten the cow off the track, but the farmers' lawyer also proved that the cow rang her bell and tried to frighten the engine off the track, and so the jury decided in his favor.

The Hickman thieves attempted to make a raid on the residence of Marshal Warner, West Hickman, on Monday night, but failed in their design. Mr. Warner took two shots at the retreating form of one, but, owing to the darkness, probably missed him. These thieves were treading on dangerous ground if they knew it, and are sure to carry off a load they are not bargaining for, if they repeat the attempt.

The demand to rent land in this vicinity seems unprecedented. Scarcely a day passes that applicants do not call at this office making inquiries. They are mostly new comers, and if they could be accommodated an apparent healthy and vigorous population would be encouraged. Those having land to rent, lease or sell, would do well to leave information at the Courthouse office.

A lady operator, appointed to the charge of the Hickman telegraph office, arrived Tuesday and resigned the position Wednesday. She was intimidated by the rough, uncivilized appearance of the men about the depot and wharf. If the telegraph office had been in the Courthouse building, coming in contact only with the more affable, polite and good looking gentlemen, her impressions of Hickman must have been more favorable!

LOOSENESS IN CITY FINANCES.

Low SALARIES THE PROBABLE CAUSE.—We understand the eyes of the City Council have been opened to a looseness in the management of city finances, extending back many years, which demands immediate and prompt attention. We do not understand that there is the slightest intimation or accusation that any one has acted dishonestly, or taken any advantage of the opportunity open to them to feather their nests. The city for many years has issued checks for the payment of its expenses and all other purposes, and these checks from time to time are taken in by the different officers, and if their settlements with the city, turned over to the Council as vouchers for so much cash. It appears that the Council, instead of having these checks cancelled or destroyed, allowed the city clerks to deposit them in the city desk, uncanceled. We learn this has been the custom for some years past, and also, that almost any one who had access to this desk. Of course, these checks uncanceled and with no evidence that they had been paid, were as good as the first day they were issued, and one so disposed could help himself and put them on the market for circulation again. We have heard intimations that any one has ever taken any advantage of this looseness in the management of the city finances. The present Council has been very particular in trying to fathom the matter, and has endeavored to obtain some statement of the actual indebtedness of the city, but we are informed that they have not been able to do so, as no one has been able to guide their investigations to any reliable source of accurate calculation. If there are the facts of the situation, the tax payers of the town should justly feel a deep concern. The supposition is that such looseness has grown up from inattention and not criminality; but be this as it may, the good tax payers of Hickman struggle enough to pay their taxes one time, without taking any compensations as to the residue of checks which their money has paid one time. We make mention of the matter because we think it demands public consideration.

WHAT WAS THE MATTER WITH GUMBO?—On the night Gumbo was taken sick, John W. Cole and myself, were with him after supper, and as he had commenced vomiting, we collected some of the ejected matter. I carefully preserved the same until I could get some good acid, and then examined the same very carefully, assisted by John W. Cowgill. We first tested a fluid known to have a very minute quantity of strychnine in it. We then tested a fluid that had no strychnine in it. The first gave the play of colors perfectly; the latter gave no colors. We then made three tests of the matter ejected from Gumbo's stomach, and it gave the play of colors just as perceptibly as did the fluid known to have strychnine in it. This is why I have stated so positively to some of my friends that Gumbo had taken strychnine. As to how he got the same, I know not. The test used: For nitrous compounds in the acid—sulphate of iron; test for strychnine drop the suspected fluid on a clean porcelain surface; evaporate to dryness; apply sulphuric acid to the spot, and, afterwards, a minute portion of bichromate of potash. It will first turn blue, then purple, then crimson, followed by red and green.

ALWAYS SOMETHING NEW AND TEMPTING—Grated coconut, boneless herrings, gold ring candy, are among the new and delicious novelties of Cole's bakery and confectionery. Each jar of candy is a genuine gem for a child, and candy warranted to be pure. Sold at the same price as ordinary candy. The grated coconut is a great desideratum and convenient for housekeepers. Try it.

The Fulton County Teacher's Institute is to convene at the Public School buildings, in Hickman, next Monday, continuing three days. We trust the friends of education and our citizens generally, will extend a welcome encouragement to the teachers and friends in attendance. There is no class or profession, exercising a larger influence on the well being of society than the teachers, and there is no class less appreciated or less encouraged. We want them to receive a generous welcome, take them home with you and stimulate them to the important duties of their profession, and cause them to feel and appreciate the dignity of the truly great labor in which they are engaged.

Cassens' Compound Honey of Tar has been so long and favorably known that it needs no recommendation. For coughs, colds, sore throat, hoarseness, etc., it affords speedy relief, and is a most pleasant and efficacious remedy, honey and tar being two of its ingredients. The skill of the chemist, and the knowledge of a physician were united in its preparation, the result being a compound, which is the favorite remedy in this severe climate, and has no equal as a cure for coughs, colds, hoarseness, bronchitis, croup, etc. Use Cassens' Honey of Tar. Price 50 cents. For sale by BUCK & COWGILL, Hickman, Ky.

The Mexican Dollar.
What is the difference between the Mexican dollar and Tabler's Buckeye File (Dime)? The one does what it promises and the other doesn't. The Mexican dollar says, "I am one hundred cents," but when you come to invest it, you find it is only eighty-five. Tabler's Buckeye File (Dime) says, "I will cure you of Piles," and upon trial it is found to do so in every case. It makes but one promise—to cure piles and does so without failure. Price 50 cents a bottle. For sale by BUCK & COWGILL, Druggist, Hickman, Ky.

False Impression.
It is generally supposed by a certain class of citizens that they are now cured or experienced that Dyspepsia can not invariably be cured, but we are pleased to state that Dr. Cassen's Compound Honey of Tar, never, to our knowledge, failed to cure Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint in all its forms such as Sour Stomach, Costiveness, Sick Headache, and all other ailments of the digestive system. Out of 30,000 dozen bottles sold last year, not a single failure was reported, not a thousand of our most valued letters received from druggists of wonderful cures. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sample bottles 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents.

You Must Cure That Cough.
With Shiloh's Consumption Cure you can cure yourself. It is as simple as the fact that Consumption can be cured, while for Coughs, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Asthma, and all diseases of Throat and Lungs, it is absolutely without an equal. Two doses will relieve your child of the Croup, it is pleasant to take and perfectly harmless to the youngest child, and no mother can afford to be without it. You can use two-thirds of a bottle, and if what we say is not true we will refund the money paid. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00 per bottle. If your Lungs are sore or Chest or Back lame, use Shiloh's Consumption Cure. Sold by C. A. HOLCOMBE, Druggist, Hickman, Ky. jalo-ly
